

Method and Apparatus to Manage Multi-Computer Demand

Abstract of the Disclosure

A method, multi-computer media and apparatus that uses an economics model to manage the demand and the resource satisfying that demand for multi-computer memory. The present invention quantifies demand as a function of space, and computer resource as a function of time, so that a computational system can meet an application demand.

Figures